

H. Maloha Skin Care Goes to The Oscars

H. Maloha, a natural and organic Hawaiian bionutrient skin care company, is hand-selected for celebrity bags at The 2009 Oscars.

Holualoa, HI (PRWEB) February 25, 2009 -- The 81st Academy Awards, also known as The Oscars, honoring the best in film for 2008 was held on Sunday, February 22, 2009 at the Kodak Theatre in Hollywood. The 2009 Oscars attracted such celebrities as Angelina Jolie, Meryl Streep, Kate Winslet, Penelope Cruz, Marisa Tomei, Diane Lane and Marion Cotillard. Hawaiian bionutrient skin care company, H. Maloha, was also invited to share the spotlight on this star filled Hollywood night. For the fourth celebrity event in the last nine months, H. Maloha pampered the most elite celebrity faces with their Hawaiian bionutrient face serum before they stepped onto the red carpet.

"There are literally hundreds of skin care companies that could have been selected for the show. For H. Maloha to be exclusively invited to be a part of one of the most prominent film award ceremonies in the world, The Oscars, it was truly an honor for us," said Scott Mounce, mainland marketing director for H. Maloha. "We are privileged to work with celebrities who absolutely love our bionutrient face serum. It seems to have become the 'must have' amongst celebrities to reduce skin aging."

H. Maloha's breakthrough serum uses natural and organic ingredients in its serum, containing 29 botanicals, vitamins and antioxidants. The manufacturing of the serum is eco-friendly and it does not use animals in the testing of its product. The serum is 100% paraben free and contains no harsh chemicals, mineral oils, fragrances or other color additives that may harm the skin.

In the last nine months H. Maloha has been invited to participate in The MTV Movie Awards, The Emmy's, The Mercedes-Benz Fashion Week and The Oscars.
